AlgaeFood: Seaweed as the regional food of the future

After three years, the German-Danish AlgaeFood project is coming to an end, but its resources will remain freely available to everyone. To mark the occasion, the project is hosting an event in Kerteminde (Denmark).

Over the past three years, AlgaeFood has brought seaweed to the table and into people's minds across the border region: through numerous hands-on activities, cookery workshops, the 'AlgenTalk' podcast, over 30 seaweed recipes, and demonstrations at schools and businesses. The teaching materials developed as part of the project are now also available.

Now it's your turn:

- Try out one of the delicious seaweed recipes for yourself,
- Suggest using the teaching materials on seaweed at your local school,
- or use our seagarden concept to start your own community seagarden for growing seaweed at locally.

You can find these and many other resources on the algaefood.eu website. Find out, for example, why seaweed is so beneficial for the environment and which types of seaweed you can find on the beach and prepare yourself.

Coming up:

The final AlgaeFood event will take place on 25th August 2026 in Kerteminde (Denmark) under on the topic: "AlgaeFood – Seaweed as a regional food of the future".

You can look forward to fascinating talks, a presentation of the project materials and exciting discussion. There are still a few spots available. Click >here< to register.
